Integrity's new simulated checkrail combines aesthetics and efficiency

Integrity now offers a new simulated checkrail SDL/SDLS option for its Wood-Ultrex Series windows. Simulated Checkrail SDL bars are the perfect solution for projects where the aesthetic requirements or architectural considerations would call for a double hung product but egress compliance or specific energy performance not met by a double hung is required. For example, Integrity's high-performance tripane glazing option — only available in casement and awning windows — can feature the classic look of a double hung window with the new Simulated Checkrail SDL (available with or without spacer bars).

Integrity Windows and Doors now offers hundreds of new standard window sizes in both its Wood-Ultrex and All Ultrex series, offering builders and homeowners even greater flexibility in specifying Integrity products. Integrity's Wood-Ultrex and All Ultrex lines also offer improved flexibility when choosing special sizes. Specify custom-sized windows, in 1/64" increments, within the newly expanded size matrices for a window that perfectly fits your needs.
